15 Courses Taught

- Introduction to Economics. I have taught versions of this course in many different forms. With more or less mathematical rigor, for economics students and for students of other disciplines. Following a textbook (Mankiew, Acemoglu et al., CORE or Samuelson), or with my own class notes. I have taught versions of this in UPF, Southampton, Edinburgh and CUNEF.
 - International Trade and Finance. Not my piece of cake, but I have had to teach it often. International trade at undergraduate level (at UPF, following Krugman and Obsfield) and International finance (at Southampton, also using Krugman and Obsfield) and trade at graduate level in Southampton using mostly my own notes.
 - Macroeconomics. I have taught at introductory and advanced level of the undergraduate both in UPF and Edinburgh, and at graduate level at the same two places. I have also taught topics courses on Macro many times. In the undergraduate courses I have used as textbooks Blanchard (many years ago), Mankiew (albeit I did not like it particularly), Romer, and my own notes. In the graduate courses I have followed mostly my own notes.
 - Political Economy. At UPF and Edinburgh, both advanced UG and graduate level. I used Persson and Tabellini, plus my own notes.
 - Labour Economics Mostly search theory for graduate students at Edinburgh. My own notes.
